Danbury Airport Fixed Base Operation (KDXR),
Business Aircraft Center, Inc.
Announces New Remote Viewing Security Cameras

From wherever they are in the world, small aircraft pilots and owners can log on from their computers and watch their planes.

Danbury, CT, January 25, 2011...Business Aircraft Center, Inc.

(www.businessaircraftcenter.com), the fixed base operation located at Danbury Airport, Connecticut announced today that management has completed the installation of remote viewing security cameras inside the hanger and around the outside ramp space. Now small aircraft owners and pilots can log in from their computers from anywhere in the world, enter a security code, and watch their planes remotely.

Since 9/11, relatively little has been done across the country to increase the security at small airports, leaving it for the most part in the hands of the FBO operators and the pilots themselves. However, there have been concerns raised by Homeland Security and the FAA about the ease of which terrorists and drug smugglers could illegally commandeer a small plane. The case of the "Barefoot Bandit" last year left small airplane owners concerned that their planes may be vulnerable to theft as well.

“At BAC, the safety and security of our clients and their aircraft is our utmost priority,” said Santo Silvestro, co-owner of Business Aircraft Center and licensed pilot. “Although we’ve never had an incident where security was an issue, we wanted to take a proactive approach. Whether they are monthly renters or transient customers, this will provide them with peace of mind knowing their aircraft are safe.”

Business Aircraft Center, is based on the North side of the Danbury Municipal Airport in Connecticut, and is approximately one hour by car from Manhattan. To learn more about BAC's security cameras and quality maintenance service visit www.businessaircraftcenter.com or call (203) 748-7000.
